If you have any questions or concerns, please contact us at privacy@GlobalLogic.com.

I. What personal data we collect and what is the purpose and legal basis for its processing?

The extent of personal information that we process includes information provided by you in the competition entry form: your name, surname and email address and/or phone number. You are not obligated to provide that data, although that would prevent you from taking part in the Competition. We may process information concerning your participation in the Competition (like the place you take in the Competition). We also process data necessary for tax settlements if you receive a Prize (you are obligated to provide this data to us). If you agree to marketing communications, we will be unable to send them to you without your email address/phone number.

Data is collected for the purposes of organization, settlement and completion of the Competition, and also for the Organizer promotional purposes.

We can process your personal information also for the GlobalLogic promotional purposes, such as invitation to events and competitions organized by GlobalLogic or informing about interesting recruitment conducted by GlobalLogic, including, if you gave such consent, by email and/or telephone.

The legal basis in the scope related to your participation in the Competition is entering into and performance of a contract (the rules) (Article 6.1(b) of the GDPR), and for Organizer's promotion, defence against any claims and statistical purposes – our legitimate interests (Article 6.1(f) of the GDPR). For the necessary settlements, including tax and also any related archiving, we operate on the basis of applicable law (Article 6.1(c) of the GDPR).

II. Retention period of your personal data

Your data as a Competition Entrant will be processed for the period necessary for proper execution and settlement of the Competition, and for promotional purposes (like invitation to take part in other events organized by GlobalLogic) - until you resign from data processing for that purpose, including for receipt of any further invitations / newsletter.

Name and surname of the Competition winner may be published on the Internet (on social media on GL's profile and connected profiles), and therefore may be available in that medium indefinitely.

The period of processing may, however, be extended in case of any claims, in particular by the periods of their expiration, any disputes or if we are required to do so due to relevant legal requirement.

III. Who has access to your personal data?

Access to your personal data will be given exclusively to appropriately authorised employees or associates of GlobalLogic, partners, consultant or auditors – in the extent necessary to perform their responsibilities. Your data may be transferred, for example, to providers of hosting services or ICT services, other entities that provide to us technical or organizational assistance in the Competition, including communication with entrants or distribution of invitations, newsletter, etc. (e.g. couriers), including also companies from the GlobalLogic group.

GlobalLogic is a global company which means that some companies from the GlobalLogic group and our associated are located outside the European Economic Area (EEA). Each time when personal data is transferred outside the European Economic Area, GlobalLogic applies the required safeguards, including standard data protection clauses adopted pursuant to decisions of the European Commission. You can obtain further information on other third countries whereto we are actually transferring your personal data and, if the case, a copy of the relevant safeguards (including security measures) we apply for the transfer of personal data to third countries by contacting us at privacy@GlobalLogic.com.

In case of publishing the name and surname of the Competition winner on the Internet (on social media on GL's profile and connected profiles), the group of recipients of that data will be unlimited. We may also be obligated – if there is a legal basis for that – to disclose certain information to public authorities as required by proceedings conducted by them or for tax reasons.
